CHAS. M. MACHAM, ----- Editor.
HOPKINSVILLE, OUT. 9, 1883.

Judge Hoadley resumed the canvass in Ohio Monday.

Girls be patient. It is less than three months till leap year.

Speaking of cannibals reminds us that Adam's son's were Cain-Abels.

Phil. B. Thompson will be a candidate for re-election to Congress in the Eighth-District.

The Sentinel of Henderson, issued a very creditable daily during the Fair last week.

Frederick O. Prince, Major of Boston, has declined the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts.

The Democrats have a first rate chance to elect their nominee for Governor in Iowa. Several Republican orators have been sent to the rescue.

Gen Winfield Scott Hancock is very ill. It is said that his health has been wrecked by brooding over his defeat for the Presidency in 1880.

A pumpkin as big as a flour barrel is attracting attention in Kenton county. It should be utilized. It would make a good head for the business man who doesn't advertise.

The cotton crop in Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana will be cut short by the recent drought at least one half and not more than half an average crop will be made in those states.

Gov. Cameron of Virginia, has bottled his office by taking the stump for Mahone's friends. He refuses to divide time with the Democratic speakers, who are anxious to meet him in debate.

The greatest political battle of the year is being fought in Ohio to-day. Both sides are claiming the victory. Should the Democrats win it will be a victory, but should they lose it will not be a defeat, as Ohio is a Republican State.

President Arthur's life-size portrait has just been hung up in the White House among those of all his predecessors excepting President Buchanan. The absence of the last Democratic President's picture is not explained.

According to the latest ruling persons who subscribe for a paper, one year cannot be forced to pay for a longer time unless they order the paper continued, even though they may take it regularly from the Post-Office.

Col. Geo. Knapp, proprietor of the St. Louis Republic, died on his way home from Europe on the 18th ult. He had been an invalid for some time. He leaves a fortune of half a million dollars.

An express car was boarded by three masked men, near Peru, Ind., on the 28th ult., and the messenger gagged and robbed of $1,500. The robbers then locked him in the car and quietly took their departure.

Twelve masked robbers went through a train at Coolidge, Kans., last Friday, killed John Hilton the engineer, who refused to stop, wounded the fireman and express agent and robbed the train. The attack was very sudden. The train men made a gallant fight but had to succumb.

The King of Spain was insulted by a mob in the streets of Paris, France, last week and the President of the French Republic called upon King Alfonso and offered a formal apology and tendered him a banquet. The apology and invitation were accepted by the young monarch. The affair created a sensation in Europe.

The Post-office department has ruled that when a publisher sends a newspaper to a person, without an implied or expressed request, the fact that the party addressed takes the paper from the post-office does not of itself create a liability to pay for it. This is a good ruling and will stop unscrupulous publishers from sending their papers forever to persons who subscribe for one year only.

As will be seen in another column, the feud between the Crumbaugh and the Stuarts factions of the Republican party at Owensboro has assumed a different phase and warrants of arrest against Maj. Crumbaugh have been issued by the United States authorities. Whether Maj. Crumb will again emerge unharmed from his troubles remains to be seen.

Gov. Knott has declined to send a military guard to attend the execution of Craft at Grayson, next Friday. He has authorized the Sheriff to summon every citizen of the county, if necessary, to assist him in preserving order, and thereby fully demonstrate the capacity of the civil power to enforce the law and preserve the peace without recourse to the militia. His action in the matter was wise and proper.

A heavily-loaded streetcar was struck by a passenger train in Philadelphia and knocked into smithereens, almost every passenger being more or less injured. Four were killed and several others were crippled for life. There was no conduct to the driver, who was to blame.

Our thanks are due Mr. Frank M. Snavely, the Secretary for a committee of the Eastern Kentucky Lunatic Sleddon's men do we do to the tree to ORDINARY CONVERSATION.

What big oaks from little acorns grow! The one absorbing topic of conversation at the regular weekly meeting of the Dog-cart Club yesterday afternoon was the painful and unfortunate disagreement between Judge Kincaid, Private Secretary to Gov. Knott and Col. L. J. Frazee. Though the dispute has been happily and honorably adjusted at last, it was widely thought for several hours that Col. Atherton and Col. Deuser would have to call out the Sixth ward regiment to prevent bloodshed. Yesterday morning early Judge Kincaid wrote a little note, which he sent to Baron Salvador, of Paris, France, bidding him good bye.

"Tres bien, ma cher Baron," ran the Judge's little note, "tout a voila la perte de moi—J'ai regret que vous laissez. Le Kentucky a regret, Bon voyage et skip la garter et trai-la-tee."

Adieu. CHARLIE.

In order that our English readers may understand this, we give the translation literally. It runs:

"Well, well, my dear Baron, if I intrude, pardon me. I am sorry you leave us. Kentucky regrets it also.

It was a friendly trifle only, a breath of Paris perfume for the Parisian wandering in a foreign land; a bout of Judge Kincaid's heart in a symphony of the Eastern Kentucky Lunatic Sleddon's men do we do to the tree to well. Judge Kincaid kept a copy of the note and gave it to a COMMERCIAL reporter for publication. The reporter happened to show it to Col. Frazee. Now, Col. Frazee is a thorough French scholar. His lengthy visits to the Jardin Mabille and the Place de Luxembourg were not thrown away. He read it, and with a sneering smile, said Judge Kincaid was a speller of French was a dandy.

Judge Kincaid came up at this moment with Mr. Isaac Palmer Caldwell and overheard the remark.

I did not learn French," Judge Kincaid answered hotly, "from Paris signboards."

"What do you say (boni soi?)?" asked colonel Frazee, sneeringly. "I do not give one penny (qui mal y pence?) for you."

Hot words passed, blows were threatened and the two men came near clinching, when Mr. Caldwell interfered and counseled arbitration. The note was handed to him for his decision. Last night the following notice was posted at the Dog-cart Club:

DECISION.

Certain difference having arisen between Judge Kincaid and Colonel Frazee, touching the orthography of certain French words, and the same having been submitted to me for adjustment, at my request, the following is rendered:

The alleged misspelling of the word "cheer," in the phrase "Ma cheer Baron," is the ground of Colonel Frazee's remark. I decide that in the French communities of Paris, in Bourbon county, and Versailles, in Woodford county, and Versailles, in Woodford county, the word "cheer" is used in

Mrs. T. P. Major, of Clarksville is at Mr. Jas. E. Jesup's.

Miss Lillie Gunn, of Cadiz is visiting Miss Louie Redd.

Mrs. P. B. Pendleton of Pembroke, is at Capt. Abernathy's.

Mr. C. B. Bostwick, Quartermaster General's agent for this district, left yesterday for Henderson.

Miss Lula Watkins is visiting at Mr. E. B. Long's.

Maj. S. R. Crumbaugh left yesterday for Louisville.

Miss Lizzie Trabue, of Allensville is visiting friends in the county.

Miss Kate Thomas, Marion, Ky., is visiting Miss Hennie Stevens.

Miss Fannie Trigg, of New Harmony, Ind., is visiting at Mr. M. W. Grissam's.

Mr. Hugh Scargent, of Lincoln county, is visiting his brother Dr. Andrew Scargent.

Mr. M. Frankel, of Cincinnati, is in the city shaking hands with his numerous friends.

Mrs. Dr. Wellborn, Mrs. Robb, and Miss Lena Robb, of Indiana, are the guests of Mrs. M. W. Grissam.

Mrs. W. S. Davison, of Strawberry Point, Iowa, is visiting the family of her father, Mr. Jas. E. Jesup.

Mr. John A. Wallace, of Texas, was the guest of his brother Col. Jas. A. Wallace last week.

Miss Ella Pratt of Madisonville, and Miss Mary Warfield, of Casky, are spending the week with Mrs. M. E. Rodgers.

Mrs. Rebecca Pearce and her daughter, Miss Josephine, after a visit of several weeks to the family of Mr. H. F. McCamy, returned last Monday to their home in Mobile, Ala.

Misses Emma Wheeler of this county and Mary Steel, of Paducah, are spending the week with Dr. Wm. W. Wheeler.

Misses Fannie and Susie Baker the charming twins of South Christian, returned home Sunday after spending several days in the city.

Miss Draughon, of Springfield Tenn., will spend to-morrow night in this city and leave Thursday morning to visit the Louisville Exposition.

Mrs. M. E. Rodgers, the Nashville Street milliner, has returned from the east with a full line of millinery goods for the fall trade. Miss Ida Allen returned with her and will be trimmer again this season.

Dr. J. F. Shelton and his accomplished daughter, Miss Annie, who have been visiting relatives in this city for six weeks past, left last Saturday morning for their home at Fort Worth, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Boyd Faulkner, of Martinsburg, W. Va., returned home Tuesday. They were accompanied by Misses Emma and Salie Campbell, who will spend the winter with them.

Judge Glegor, of Uniontown, was at Conference last week and called upon us, and we regret that we were not at the time, and did not have the pleasure of making his acquaintance.

Judge J. F. Simmons, editor of the Henderson Reporter, accompanied by his daughter Miss Birdie Simmons, and Miss Jeanie Ralwhouse, of Sardinia, Miss., stopped over in the city a few hours yesterday on their way from Mississippi to Henderson.

Mr. L. W. Gaines, did not return from Hopkinsville to-day. There must be something like unto a load-stone attraction in that place in the shape of a pretty girl, which is holding him—Bowling Green Times.

Miss Mae Burnett, of Cadiz, is in the city.

KEENE.

The eminent tragedian, Thos. W. Keene, will appear at the Opera House Wednesday evening, October 17th, in Bulwer Lytton's sublime tragedy of "Richelieu" or the "Conspiracy." Mr. Keene is one of the greatest tragic stars of the present day, and is meeting with unbounded success wherever he appears. His praises from the critics, in all the large cities have been without stint. The leading critics of the country pronounce "Richelieu" his greatest effort and place him on the same plane as Edwin Booth, in all the trying scenes of this great play, and pronounce his rendering of the celebrated curse scene superior to any living man. No one should fail to see Mr. Keene, as he is certainly the most prominent star ever in our little city. The box sheet will be open at Gish & Garner's Wednesday, Oct. 10, at 1 o'clock. Parties desiring opera glasses can engage them now at the reserve seat stand. Reserved seats $1.50.

HERE AND THERE.

W. F. Patton, Life Insurance.

Polk Cansler's monthly sale of live stock comes off at his stable in this city next Saturday Oct. 13.

The competitive drill at the Fair, which was advertised in the catalog, did not come off.

Jas. F. Garrity again won the company medal at the regular monthly competitive drill of "Co. D," last week.

The big sewer on Nashville street is dug up to Virginia street, and work is now being done on the fork which will run to Smith's livery stable.

Several new cottages are being built on Virginia street, opposite the Bryan residence. They will be rent.

A street running parallel with the river has been opened between the residence of Mr. Jas. E. Jesup and Mr. John Brown.

Mr. J. T. Gant, late of the firm of Forbes & Gant, is now operating in Tennessee as a lumber dealer, with headquarters at Gallatin.

The Methodist Conference has adjourned, and chickens have come down so a man doesn't have to mortgage his real estate to buy a dozen of them.

The Hopkinsville Cornet band, under the leadership of Mr. J. W. Cross, made the music at the Fair. The boys were rigged out in their new uniforms.

The Springfield bridge which was burned several days ago, has been rebuilt and trains began passing over again Thursday and the annoying blockade to travel and the mats no longer exists.

A grand excursion to Chicago and the Northern cities, and to return via Louisville, conducted by the enterprising implement firm of Metcalfe & Bro., of this city, will leave this city next Monday morning at 6:30 o'clock.

Mr. M. W. Grissam, of the "Lone Star Grocery," will leave this morning for Louisville and Cincinnati to take in the Expositions and replenish his stock of groceries. Look for good and cheap groceries when he returns.

Mr. W. J. Graham, recently of Fairview, has purchased the northern half of the large lot on South Main owned by Mr. Jos. Campbell and will shortly erect a handsome residence upon it. Maj. J. O. Ferrell recently purchased the other half and will also build.

Gen. John S. Williams delivered an address at the Fair on Friday, but we were so busy interviewing the people on another matter, in which dollars and cents were concerned, that we did not hear it. Gen. Williams has a great many friends in this county and he was listened to with close attention by a good crowd.

A spring chicken at the house of Mr. H. S. Carl has never left its mother, although the hen has seen both broods of chickens this year. The pullet sat on the nest with her mother while she was hatching the second brood, and now helps to take care of the little chickens by hunting food, assisting in hovering them &c.—Anderson News.

The "Heironymous table" establishment at the Fair was permitted to run until Saturday at noon when it was broken up, and the owners arrested by the city authorities. They paid $1000 for privilege of running it during the Fair, and up to Friday night deposited $5000 in Bank. Some men who dabbled with the fascinated ladies lost as high as $200 in a few minutes. The parties arrested were placed under a small bond of $12.50 each and permitted to go their way Sunday.

The Huntly Dramatic Co. played a very successful engagement of five nights at the Opera House last week. Tuesday night "Enoch Arden" was played, Wednesday, "Col. Mulberry Sellers," Thursday, "Rip Van Winkle," Friday, "Marble Heart," and Saturday, "The Streets of New York." The houses were not large at first but increased each night and the last two evenings the Opera House was comfortably filled. Mr. Huntly is a very clever actor. As "Enoch Arden," "Col. Sellers," "Rip Van Winkle" and "Joe Badger" he makes a very creditable presentation of the parts, but the last character is his best impersonation. He is supported by Miss Florence Kennedy (his wife) and a mediocre company. Mr. Huntly is a favorite here and should he come again he will be welcomed.

An attempt was made last Sunday night by some fleshly villain to poison six mules belonging to Mr. W. F. Gabard Superintendent of the coal mines at Petersburg. On Monday morning Mr. Gabard was having his mules led out of his stable and when they reached the door two of them stopped and licked something which had been put under the door. In twenty minutes one of them was dead and the other was only saved by hard work. The mixture was examined and found to be salt, meat and strychnine.

Mr. Gabard suspects certain parties whose enmity he incurred by testifying before the grand jury against them. The attempt to take revenge by poisoning his stock was a cowardly and dastardly crime for which the villainous perpetrator, whoever it may be, should be dealt with in the severest manner. Mr. Gabard has posted a notice offering $100 for any information that may lead to the discovery of the guilty party.

Twenty-six odd and twenty-four even numbers were lucky. The highest prize was drawn by an odd number, and the second and third by even ones. The numbers were pretty well shaken up, running all the way from 31 to 1116.

The prizes were scattered over three States. Two of the best ones went to Tennessee, Missouri got one, and the others were scattered over Christian, Trigg, Todd, Graves, Crittenden, and Scott counties in this State.

Our Premium Distribution.

The third free distribution of premiums to the subscribers of the SOUTH KENTUCKIAN, for the current year, took place in the amphitheatre of the Fair Grounds last Saturday at 3:30 o'clock, p. m. There were 50 premiums given away, aggregating in value $600. Some of the principal ones were on exhibition at the Fair and the excitement had arisen to a whet heat when the hour for the drawing arrived.

Two boxes for the numbers were arranged. One contained 50 tags, wrapped in slips of paper that concealed the numbers, representing the 50 prizes. The other contained tags representing the tickets held by the various subscribers.

Mrs. R. La Prade Smith and H. H. Lunderman, of Todd county; H. H. Bryant, of Trigg county; Jno. W. McPherson and Austin Peay, of Christian county, all ticket holders, were selected from the crowd to assist in conducting the drawing. Misses Mary Flack and Mary Tyler, two little girls, were selected to draw the numbers out. After the manner of the distribution had been explained and the publishers of the SOUTH KENTUCKIAN had given their personal assurance that every ticket registered was represented in the box and that the distribution should be fair in every respect, the drawing began and the prizes were drawn in the following order:

EXCHANGE SCINTILLATIONS

If you want to experiment on the attractiveness of affection, endeavor to divorce a lazy boy from a warm bed on a cold winter morning.—Breckenridge News.

The young man who contemplates popping the question should do so by word of mouth and not in writing, for "present company is always accepted," you know.—Breckenridge News.

A huge jaw bone four feet in length has been found on the coast of Maine. It is supposed to have belonged to a Cairo girl who was shipwrecked in that locality some years ago.—Papuca News.

"We hear of an amateur singer up in Chenango county," says an exchange, "who frightened a pair of canary birds to death." A clear case of killing two birds with one's tone.—Enquirer.

A Mississippi editor says he is trying to "set down" on the Mother Hubbard dress. Before he sits down, that editor had better find out if there is anything in the dress.—Elizabeth News.

The author of the "Coming Crown" reveals that Ben Butler will be the next Democratic candidate for President. In case his revelation turns out true, will Ben's crown be made of silver spoons?—State Journal.

Jones found out the difference the other day, when his wife caught him kissing the pretty servant girl, between a mad woman and an Indian. He says one takes the hair without the scalp, while the other takes scalp and all.—Somerset Republican.

A young man of Washington City was fined three dollars in the Police Court for kicking a mule. The authorities sought to turn the mule and the young man loose in a lot, and give the mule another chance.—Washington Green Gazette.

Three hundred deaf-mutes are holding a National Convention in New York City. It would be a novelty in the way of conventions if for no other reason than that some fellow is not up on a chair every few minutes shouting "Mr. Chairman!"—Louisville Post.

A Louisiana paper is responsible for the following: A black woman was carried before a magistrate for unmercifully beating her son, a saddle colored imp, and the judge was delivering a reprimand, when the woman broke out with: "Judge have you ever been a parent to a wofless yeller boy like dat ar cub ob mine?" "Never!" ejaculated the judge, with great vehemence, getting red in the face. "Don't talk!"—Ex.

Gen. Williams.

Interior Journal.

The Philadelphia Times has a Kentucky correspondent who seems to be resurrecting and revamping all the old jokes and stories that have been told on local politicians for the last century. One of his last publications is taken from the Sunday Argus of several years ago, and was written by Col. E. Polk Johnson, then its editor, from an actual occurrence which we related to him. The true version is as follows: Gen. Williams was stopping at the Myers House, Stanford, before his first election as U. S. Senator, and had invited a party to his room to partake of some liquid refreshments. He had imbibed pretty liberally himself, when Capt. Tom Richards, who was bugler in his regiment during the late unpleasantness, having conceived the happy idea of serenading his old commander arrived in front of the hotel with the band. Thinking to awaken the memory of the General, he sounded the call for boots and saddles and repeated it over and again, but instead of its awakening memories, the old warrior, who had been kept ignorant of the compliment to him, turned to Colonel W. and asked, What stage is that? that time of night and what is in the h—l makes the driver toot so much? The Colonel politely informed him that the tooter was and suggested that the party expected a speech from him. "H—l," said the General and straightening himself up he marched to the balcony above and commenced, his voice trembling with seeming emotion, I knew that bugle call the instant I heard it, and the memories of the past came crowding to my mind. Often have I heard it call the old First Kentucky to field of carnage or exultingly sounding the note of victory. [Cheers.] I would have known it even had I heard it in the pathless wilds of the West for no man under the sun can evoke such sweet notes from a bugle as can dear old Tom Richards, the bravest and the best man that ever went to battle. Long and loud cheered followed this and the effect was electrical till Col. W. unable to keep the true inwardness of the business longer related and vouched for its correctness, though he has never succeeded in making the Capt. believe that the general could thus dissemble. A shrewd politician or a keen demagogue.

Now the question is, what stage is that? That is the question.

Our thanks are due Mr. Frank M. Snavely, the Secretary, for a com-

up, and if his ways are dark, his tricks are never vain. One of them, and it never fails to take, is to get with some acquaintance and walk around a town. This is not for the purpose of being introduced but to get his friends to tell him before reaching a crowd, who is that fellow with the beaver on? The old chap with the spectacles? Or the young rooster with the moustache? Then he goes up to each call him by name, says something pleasant and it tickles the average man to death to think that the General remembers him so well. This kind of dealing has made the General exceedingly popular with masses, who are unable to see through the business, and he will always be a hard man to beat. He claims that he is as good as chosen as his own successor in the Senate but the prospects are that we will have no walk over even if his ambition is realized.

WILLIAM NYE.

Damon and Pythias were named after a popular secret organization because they were solid on each other. They thought more of one another than anybody. They borrowed chewing tobacco and were always sociable and pleasant. They slept together, and unduly "stood off" the handmaid from month to month in the most cheerful and harmonious manner. If Pythias snored in the night like the blast of a foghorn, Damon would not get mad and kick him in the stomach, as some would. He gently and firmly took him by the nose and lifted him up and down to the merry rhythm of "The Babies on our Block." That loved one another in season and out of season. Their affection was like the soft bloom on the nose of a Wyoming legislator. It never grew pale or withered: it was always there. If Damon went to a church fair and invited, and starved on the handsome baby till the First National Bank of Syracuse would refuse to honor his checks. But one day Damon got too much budge, and told the venerable and colossal old bummer of Syracuse what he thought of him. Then Dionysius told the chief engineer of the sausage-grinder to turn on the steam and prepare for business. But Damon thought of Pythias, and how Pythias hadn't so much to live for, as he had, and he made a compromise by promising to put Pythias in a sack while the only genuine Damon went to see his girl, who lived in Albany. Three days were given him to get around and redeem Pythias, and if he failed his friend would have to go to prison.

We will now suppose three days have elapsed since the preceding chapter. A large party of enthusiastic citizens of Syracuse are gathered around the grand stand and Pythias is on the platform, cheerfully taking off his coat. Near by stands a man with a broadaxe. The Syracuse Silver Cornet band has just played "It's Funny When You Feel that Way," and the chaplain has made a long prayer, Pythias sliding a trade dollar into his hand and whispering to him to give him his money's worth. The Declaration of Independence has been read, and the man on his left is running his thumb playfully over the edge of the meat-axe. Pythias takes off his collar and tie, swearing softly to himself of his miserable luck. It is now the proper time to throw in the solitary horseman. The horizontal bars of golden light from the setting sun gleam and glitter from the dome of the court-house and bathe the green plains of Syracuse with yellow splendor, the billowy pines of ebony bronze in the eastern sky look soft and yielding, like a Sarah Bernhardt. The lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea, and all nature seems possessed with solemn hush and stillness on the surrounding and engulphing horror. The solitary horseman is seen coming along the Albany and Syracuse toll-road. He jabs the Mexican spurs into the foamy flanks of his noble Cayuse plug, and the lash of his whip as it moves through the air sings a merry song. Damon has been delayed by road agents and washouts, and he is a little behind time. Besides, he fooled a little too long, and dallied a little in Albany with his fair gazelle. But he is making time now, and he takes into the jail-yard just in time to take into the part he expected a speech from him. "H—l," said the General and straightening himself up he marched to the balcony above and commenced, his voice trembling with seeming emotion, I knew that bugle call the instant I heard it, and the memories of the past came crowding to my mind. Often have I heard it call the old First Kentucky to field of carnage or exultingly sounding the note of victory.
